Two Lewis structures can be written for sulfur dioxide. The only difference between these Lewis structures is the identity of the oxygen atom to which the double bond is formed. As a result, they must be equally satisfactory representations of the molecule. Interestingly enough, neither of these structures is correct.

It is easy to find a variety of beautiful furniture and trinkets at one of today's major household stores, but they lack the authenticity that makes an item truly valuable. Lewis & Maese recognizes character in custom furniture and understands what sets "finds" apart from the rest. Many of our items were once treasures to someone else, and they can become treasures for you, too.
